It is charged that the sale of the road to the new company lacked bona fides; that the Richmond and Rappahannous River is a tissue paper enterprise, and that the whole affair was a scheme by which the Virginia Railway and Power Company sought to rid itself of its transfer burdens and to take the road back freed of such obligations.

On the stand, Captain Joseph E. Willard, president of the Eappahannock line, who admitted he was the sole owner, fiatly denied that there was any agreement between himself and the Virginia Railway and Power Company, express or implied, other than contained in the contracts which were introduced as evidence in the proceedings.

George Bryan contended that it was not the intention of the company to build to Urbanna, and the Virginia Railway and Power Company would get the property back free of transfer burdens—that it was merely a tissue paper enterprise.

Captain Willard said he paid cash for the preferred stock. As to his agreement with the city line, he referred to sundry contracts—involving the sale of the line, land bought for a terminal at Twenty-ninth and P Streets, and others. He then stated possiblely that there was no agreement other than those in those contracts.

A plucky brakeman nearly frustrated the robbers and accounted for the one killed. The train stypped at Delta for water, and two hand'ts came aboard. One climbed over the tender and covered the fireman and engineer with a revolver. The other entered the mail car and held up the mail clerks. A brakeman who had dropped off the train on the side away from the stand to the nearest store, quickly got a rifle, and, returning, shot the robber who was in the tender. The other bandit leaped at the sound of the gun and ran for the nearby hills, carrying the registered mail sacks. He has a good chance of escaping into the neighboring hills. The train proceeded.

Gevernor Wilson said he was in need of rest and intended to get himself in good physical condition for the session of the New Jersey Legislature beginning the first of the year, when he will carry the two-fold burden of legislative program for the State and the preliminary arrangements for his presidential administration.

An incident of the day at the Wilson home was the parting of the Presidentelect with Captain "Bill" McDonald. Texas ranger and bodyguard of the last few weeks.

"I formed an affectionate regard for him," said the President-elect. "He has a combination of shrewd sense and simplicity of character that is very rare these days."

The President-elect took a seven-mile walk again to-day around the Princeton battlefield of Revolutionary days.

Governor Albert J. Wallace, which headed the Roosevelt electors may have won. The name of Lieutenant-Governor Albert J. Wallace, which headed the Roosevelt electors in the associated by many voters, pre-sumably because of his course in commuting the death sentence of murderers while acting Governor. In many instances, it is stated, Wallace's name was actually penciled off the ballots. Attorney-General Webb has rendered I an opinion that such ballots were thereby invalidated.

Acting upon this opinion, the Democratic managers have announced that if the final returns leave Roosevelt still in the lead they will challenge the vote of Los Angeles County, where the Progressives rolled up their heavigance the lead early in the day when the distant mountain precincts began to strangele in. By 4 P. M. Roosevelt's margin had increased to nearly 1,009, and it became almost certain that the unpreparted precincts carried by the Democrats would not overcome this lead.

plete returns from Los Angeles Coun-ty compared with early returns— change that wiped out an apparent lead of 6,000 votes for Wilson in the State—was due in part to a switch-ing in the method of the tallying of the popular vote. At the outset the record was made up from the vote cast for the nead of each electoral ticket. Later, when it became apparent that many Programives had not voted mittee on ways and means, is not the month.

Comparatively little legislation beyond the passage of the usual appropriation bills is expected to be enacted during the short session. The majority of the members of the House Committee on Appropriations are now on the way to Pansana, under the leadership of Chairman Fitzgerald, and the clerks of the committee are busity engaged upon the framework of the various appropriation measures.

Most of the estimates from the executive department have been received and many of the bills are well under way. The legislative, executive and judiciels and the District of Columbia bills will be in snape for committee work when Congress meets, and these probably will be the first of the supply measures to be presented to the House. It is believed the appropriation for the cenal which will be made by the next session will be the last to be required for the construction of that work.
